jgronwaldt@baretzbrunelle.com

A director of Baretz+Brunelle working from Houston, Jennifer excels at finding creative solutions to communications challenges and obtaining PR results that positively impact the business goals of her clients.

Over a PR career of more than two decades, she has consistently conceived and led business development campaigns that have brought new business to her clients and garnered national recognition for their creativity. Her past work has included the development of groundbreaking legal blogs, targeted campaigns for IP and energy practices of major law firms, and regular placements in national news outlets.

Before joining B+B, Jennifer worked for two top Houston PR firms where she focused on business-to-consumer PR for non-profits and clients in technology, entertainment, hospitality, healthcare, real estate, and other industries. She is a graduate of the University of Houston.
